

Medically Speaking: Accent Modification for the Medical Profession Table of Contents

Section 1 - Introduction

- Purpose of this Program
Before and after speech samples
- The American Sound System
- Relaxation of the Oral Musculature

Section 2 - Intonation

Aspects of Intonation

Length of Word

- One Syllable Words
- Two Syllable Words
 - First Syllable Stress
 - Second Syllable Stress
- Three Syllable Words
 - First Syllable Stress
 - Second Syllable Stress
 - Third Syllable Stress
- Four Syllable Words
 - First Syllable Stress
 - Second Syllable Stress
 - Third Syllable Stress
- Five Syllable Words
 - Second Syllable Stress
 - Third Syllable Stress
 - Fourth Syllable Stress
- Six Syllable Words
 - Fourth Syllable Stress
- Word Blending
- Syllable Reductions
- Contractions
- Listing Information
- Asking Questions: Yes or No?
- Questions with Downward Inflection
- Two-part Names
- Names of Cities and States
- Compound Nouns
- Word Pairs

Section 3 - Pronunciation

- The American “T”
- “Y” Insertions Before /u/
- The “L” Sound
 - Initial and Medial “L”
 - Final “L”
 - “L” Blends
 - “L” Blends in the Middle Position
- The “R” Sound
 - Initial and Medial “R”
 - “R” Blends
 - “R” Blends in the Middle Position
 - Vocalic “R”
- The “Th” Sound
 - Voiced “Th” [ð]
 - Voiceless “Th” [θ]
- The “H” Sound
- The “V” Sound
- The “Z” Sound
- The “S” Blends
- The “Sh” [ʃ] and “Ch” [tʃ] Sounds
- The “J” [dʒ] vs. “Y” [j] Sounds
- “-ng” [ŋ] Endings
- The Final “n” Sound
- Consonant Clusters
- “-ed” Endings for Past Tense
- “-s” Endings
- Vowels
 - The “Ah” Vowel

Section 4 - Idiomatic Expressions and American Slang

Section 5- Reassessment

Appendix 1 -Eleven Rules for Syllable Stress in Words